

Products We Love

Too big for a highchair, but too small for a regular chair. What's a parent to do? Introducing the Kaboost ($39.95), a portable, adjustable chair booster that fits virtually all chairs and offers an extra 3.75" or 4.5" of height. Perfect for preschoolers who want to be a big kid but need an extra boost. Available at Kaboost.com.

Parents looking for an alternative to adult-looking or sassy dolls will welcome the Only Hearts Club line of dolls ($10 and up) and accessories. Dolls are 9" tall and have soft, poseable bodies that reflect those of the young girls who will love to play with them. The line also includes clothing, pets, and furnishings. Visit OnlyHeartsClub.com for details and store information.

Let's face it—public restrooms can be scary, germ-laden places for children. But nature calls, and gLovies Disposable Sanitary Hand-Covers ($5 for 12) provide a level of protection between your little one's hands and the surfaces you would rather they did not touch. See MyMomKnowsBest.com for more information.

One thing that children want and don't often get is control of their environment. My Choice Chart ($24.95) gives your child the option to take control of their behavior and the outcomes it produces. The magnetic chart is personalized by you for your child—and rather than chores or bad behavior, this chart helps children track their positive behaviors. Visit MyLifeTies.com for purchasing info.

So, what exactly is a Quao? It's a card game, it's pronounced "cow," and it's fun for the entire family. Doesn't everyone want to be the supreme ruler? For $9.95, this is a cost-effective opportunity for teens and adults alike. Filled with rules and fun tasks, this fast-paced card game puts one person in charge and promises big fun for all players. Visit WiggityBang.com for game rules and purchasing information.

Campers' Quotes Contest

Did your child attend a summer camp or activity last year? If so, we want to hear from you! We're working on our 2008 Summer Camps & Activities Listing (April issue) and we need your campers' funny or sweet quotes.

Please tell us—in your camper's own words—his or her best memory or favorite part of the camp experience (day or overnight camp, summer class, etc.). Send your child's quote and your complete contact information to editor@MetroFamilyMagazine.com no later than March 10 and it might appear in our April issue. One family will receive a free session of Mad Science Camp (MadScience.org/CenralOklahoma). Prize details to be announced.

Register Now for the Respect Diversity Art & Poetry Contest

The annual Respect Diversity Art & Poetry Contest offers Oklahoma youth an opportunity to be creative for a cause. A project of the Respect Diversity Foundation, the contest helps students of all ages understand the world's cultures as they explore issues of diversity, human rights, and global peace. Groups who plan to participate should register by February 8.

The Respect Diversity Foundation expects to display around 100 collaborative works of art and poetry at the gala held at the Gaylord-Pickens Oklahoma Heritage Museum on Monday, March 25. Projects will remain on display at the museum until May 8. Winning projects will be featured in the June issue of MetroFamily Magazine. For details about entering the contest, visit RespectDiversity.com.
